

Goldens in the Garden State

The highly regarded versatility and temperament of the Golden Retriever follows from its origins as a gun dog bred to work closely with its handler. This allows the members of New Jersey's Garden State Golden Retriever Club to pursue a wide range of activities including: conformation, agility, obedience, rally, tracking, pet therapy, service, search & rescue and of course field work. We are particularly proud of our members who pursue breed purpose while generously encouraging and assisting other members to explore this rewarding activity.
